Let Thier Be Gin

No longer is gin a niche drink enjoyed by the select few. The world is waking up to the delights and complexities of this delightful drink, and with that brings a whole range of possibilities for serving and presenting cocktails and gin mixers.

Cast the idea of a gin and tonic served in any old glass aside. The opportunities for gin presentation are limitless. All that stands between you and a masterpiece mixology is imagination.

Hiball

Hiball is a tried and tested favourite to serve an honest, hard working gin and tonic. However, just because it's old doesn't mean it has to be boring. Hiballs come in a whole host of shapes and styles, all a sure fire way to make your guests go wow.

Stemware

Once reserved for wines and the occasional cocktail, stemware lends itself beautifully to a whole host of gin drinks. Don't be tempted to stick to a safe balloon glass either. Cut and engraved glasses scream of an era of speakeasy and Great Gatsby'esk parties.

Large red wine glasses can also find a home as a serving vessel for gin, packed full of ice and garnished with a variety of fruits.

Tumblers

Tumblers are a fantastic way to make gin into a masculine, short drink to rival rums, whiskey and dark spirit cocktails such as the Manhattan or Whisky sours. Either opt for a cut crystal highly decadent design for vintage charm, or take the polar opposite and embrace the ultra modern with clean edges and square angles.
