Small Dish Dining

When finding myself faced with a restaurant's menu filled with enticing offerings, I often end up wishing I could sample a little bit of everything. This formed the catalyst for our second trend forecast of 2019, which is quickly gaining momentum across the country as a new way to dine.

Traditionally seen in tapas & sushi restaurants, where serving multiple small dishes that diners can share and sample amongst the entire party is commonplace. Restaurants are now tapping into this small dish, social dining style by offering food inspired by global cuisine together at the same table.

The important features which define this trend fall into two distinct areas. Firstly, the serving vessel: metal trays, wooden boards, statement presentation plates and a bold "mix 'n' match" selection of bowls will deliver an array of dishes to your table. An interesting extension of this could be to use dish styles that correlate to the origins of the food served; couscous and lamb salad presented in a small tagine or smothered buffalo wings served up in a vintage steel tray with dipping sauce in miniature trash cans.

A secondary aspect of styling your serving for this trend will be with the choice of small plates diners use to eat. An easy entry to the style could be to simply choose a selection that doesn't match. Incorporate shapes, colours, patterns and textures to your line up of "side plates" and opt for a smaller size to prevent a single helping of the sharing dish getting lost on the plate.

MORITO - LONDON

Morito is a tapas & mezze bar next door to sister restaurant Moro on Exmouth Market and also with a site on Hackney Road. Morito Hackney Road draws influences from Southern Spain, North Africa and the Eastern Mediterranean including the island of Crete.

Small Dish Dining

Theme your tableware around the foods origins.
Terracotta tagines, Middle Eastern patterns and colours elevate your presentation to a whole new level.

You can place an order through your local Alliance (see back cover for details)

Mix and match colours and styles when serving multiple small dishes. Break free from the constraints of needing a 'matching' place setting, instead opting for whatever plate or bowl best frames the artwork your chefs create.

The eclectic nature of this trend means influence comes from past trends. Rustic and 'raw' stoneware can easily be coupled with industrial metalware all presented along side refined and sleek porcelain.

Think outside of the box when it comes to presentation, anything is an option. Utilise baking trays and grill racks for multi level serving, or go even more left field with presentation drawers for a fantastic centrepiece and an even better talking point.
